“I had the fortune of attending EEBL between 2013 and 2015.

I decided to enroll because the course was entirely thought in English and because of the competence and quality of the professors, some of whom I already knew from my bachelor degree.

The thing I probably loved the most about the master was the group we immediately formed. The class was composed of 20 students coming from different parts of the world, it was like being back in Erasmus!

Having such a small class also helped having more interaction with the professors, all of whom were always more than happy to help us and listen to any problems we might have been facing. The courses were interesting and they widened my understanding of economics, statistics and law.

Thanks to this variety of subjects, I was finally able to understand what I wanted to do in life, and so after 6 months of studying computer science I am now a data scientist for Allianz. Had I not taken some of the courses, I probably would never have discovered such a fascinating subject.”
