

Dr Joytishna (Joyti) Jit is responsible for leading or participating in national policy development projects. She is currently based in University of South Australia, and works in close collaboration on environmental assessment and remediation projects with the CRC CARE (government, industry and university partnership), Australia. She has over 15 years training and experience as scientist and policy analyst in the interdisciplinary areas of environmental, social and legal research in the Oceania region. Joyti has published and contributed to national and international technical and policy projects in previous positions held in academia, industry and inter-governmental organisations. She has qualifications in applied science (BAS), marine management (MA) and law (PhD). Joyti is also currently the Deputy Representative of the United Nations-Nippon Foundation Fellowship for Law of the Sea Alumni, a global network of 100 professionals in academia and government. In this role, she is working on capacity building in small island developing states to improve ocean governance in alignment with SDGs.