

Dr. phil. Dirk Schuck received his M. A. in Philosophy from the University of Frankfurt/Main, and his Doctor in Political Science from the University of Leipzig. He is currently an Associate Researcher at the Centre Marc Bloch in Berlin and on the Scientific Advisory Council for the Socio-Empirical Research Project "Strangers in Their Own Land" of the Institute of Political Science at the University of Leipzig. His latest Book Publication, which got released by the German Society for Research in the 18th Century, carries the title: "The Internalisation of Social Nature: On the Relation of Freedom and Empathy in the Social Psychology of Early Liberalism." Mr. Schuck is a member of the International Adam Smith Society and of the European Hobbes Society.