

Dr. Anthony M. Quattrone is the former Head of Civilian Human Resources for NATO's Allied Joint Force Command in Naples, Italy.

Currently, Dr. Quattrone holds talks and seminars at universities to discuss practical issues regarding the implementation of international agreements, decision-making processes, and the role of international civil servants in international organizations. He combines academic knowledge with practical examples from his 47 years of work experience in the fields of diplomacy, military operations, politics, and education.

Dr. Quattrone lives in Houston, Texas, but he is from New York City. He holds a B.A. in History from the University of Maryland, a Ed.M. from Boston University, and a Ph.D. in Applied Management and Decision Sciences from Walden University.