

SOFT SKILLS LABS: HOW TO DEVELOP TRANSVERSAL SKILLS – 6 CFU as Extra Activity

The proposed modules aim to acquire the fundamental knowledge and skills for the management of relational dynamics within organizations and to promote wellbeing in business contexts, bearing in mind that a good training path must be able to operate on three fronts: know, know how to do, know how to be.

The tools that will be transmitted will serve to acquire the necessary skills (soft skills) to promote organizational well-being by enhancing the same economic objectives that the company has set itself.

Promoting the empowerment of human resources and achieving high levels of engagement are the new frontiers of application research aimed at companies that promote a vision where economic objectives are as important as the goals of wellbeing achieved within the organization.*

The ability to communicate assertively and effectively, the ability to cultivate motivation and develop self-esteem in the company, promote the development of authoritative charismatic leadership and transform team work groups. This is practical knowledge that students will acquire during the training course.

Students will be able to make decisions autonomously regarding the relational situations that can be recognized and managed thanks to the skills acquired.

Communication skills represent the fundamental prerequisite for an excellent realization of the acquired soft skills. In this sense, to promote the development of such skills, an entire module dedicated to public speaking has been provided and, in addition to the frontal teaching of each training module, there are experimental laboratories where they can practice the communicative skills of the learners.

Students must have acquired the ability to recognize relational dynamics in various contexts and know which tools to use to intervene effectively.
