

Gianluca Gionfriddo is a Post-Doctoral Researcher in Innovation Management at Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies in Pisa. He is also associate researcher with the Centre for Business and Society (CBS), Iese Business School – Barcelona.

He holds a PhD in Innovation and Sustainability Management. He is a member of the advisory board for the European project Open Business Community Development.

His research interests lie at the intersection between innovation management and business ethics. In particular, he investigates the role of purpose-driven companies in contemporary capitalism, exploring how the implementation of corporate purpose drives societal impact, business model innovation and corporate social responsibility.

His work has been published in Business Strategy and the Environment, Business Ethics: the Environment & Responsibility, Journal of Management & Organization and International Entrepreneurship and Management Journal.

For further info:

<https://www.santannapisa.it/it/gianluca-gionfriddo>