

ANDREW SPANNAUS is an American journalist and political analyst. He writes on populism and international politics, and is a regular commentator on Italian radio and television. His first book, "Perché vince Trump", anticipated the reasons behind Donald Trump's victory in 2016. In 2024 he published "Rivincita", an examination of the shift away from globalization in the United States. His English-language book "Original Sins", from 2019, addresses the numerous contradictions facing the European Union.

Spannaus is the author of the podcast "That's America" for Radio24, and a regular co-host on the show Uno, nessuno, 100Milan. He lectures on US economic history at the Catholic University of Milan, and published the historical essay "Economic Nationalism and the War of 1812" in 2019.
