

Dina Rosa Agyemang is a dedicated Junior Project Manager specializing in Learning and Development at Fondazione Aurora ETS in Rome. An Economics and International Relations graduate of Italian-Ghanaian heritage, she operates at the intersection of academic excellence and social innovation to drive impactful initiatives between Europe and Africa. Since 2021, she has coordinated International Capacity Building programs, successfully bridging relevant Italian institutions with leading African universities.

Her expertise covers the entire project life cycle, from designing youth training programs and forge institutional agreements for scholarship and internship opportunities. She also supports business development initiatives in Senegal and Cameroon, with a focus on job inclusion and impact assessment. She contributed to institutional guide "Destinazione Africa," published in collaboration with the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MAECI) designed to support Italian companies toward sustainable investment opportunities and economic partnerships across the African continent.

Dina's professional path is deeply rooted in inclusive empowerment. She consistently leverages her multicultural background to foster accessibility and shift the global narrative toward Africa. By empowering the next generation of entrepreneurs, she ensures that social inclusion remains at the heart of global innovation and cross-continental collaboration.
